ALEXANDER, La., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Isaac Tarver, 28, was killed and Miss Connie Slay seriously wounded last night by an unidentified man, who attacked them while they were driving through a patch of woods, four miles from Pineville.

The slayer escaped in Tarver's automobile.

Miss Slay made her way to a negro home and was carried to a hospital.

Although a search was instituted immediately for Tarver, his body was not found until early today.

Police in Monroe, Eldorado, Ark., and other cities have been asked to aid in the search for the assailant.

GANGSTER'S SHOTS ARE HEARD AGAIN

Nephew of Chicago's Vice Lord Slain On The Street

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Gangster's bullets that have been turned upon associates of Phillip Piazza, slain vice lord of Chicago Heights, were used again today. This time Joseph Nerone or Morini, 37, said to have been a nephew of Piazza, died when seven shots had entered his body.

Nerone had attempted a counter attack for his hand clutched a revolver, from which two shots had been fired. He was killed as he stood by his expensive automobile in front of a barber shop. His diamonds, worth a small fortune, were not taken.

Police thought that the motive centered about rivalry between liquor gangs. They also saw a possible connection with the killing of Piazza and that of James Lambert, another Chicago Heights bootleg chieftain, as well as the slaying of Joseph Salvo, nephew of Lambert.

All of the killings have taken place within two months.

Administrator Faces Questioning By Superiors

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Blaming the "policy" of Washington authorities in cutting his force, Ben C. Sharpe, federal prohibition administrator for the Carolinas and Georgia, has issued a statement declaring "there is more liquor in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia now than there has been in the past three years."

Rum running, he said, has shifted from the mountains to the seaboard and Florida and Georgia "are sending more liquor to the coast and overland by automobile than ever before."

The administrator said the increased traffic was the natural result of Washington officials ordering him to cut his force "to the equivalent of what formerly was an adequate federal force for one state."

The statement of Sharpe was issued after one to the contrary had been made by M. O. Dunning, a personal representative of General Andrews.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Prohibition officials here today replied to the complaint of Ben Sharpe, administrator for the Carolinas and Georgia, with a demand that he develop greater coordination between the state and federal forces.

There were definite hints that he would be called upon also to explain some of his references to the present liquor situation in his district.

James Jones, director of prohibition, said there had been reductions in the federal forces in all areas, where effective state enforcement laws were in force.

"We must depend a great deal on the state," Jones said. "We have got to concentrate our forces in New York and other states which have no enforcement acts, or which are lax."

CHARLES BARR ON EVE OF DEATH IN DENIAL OF GUILT

Memphis Negro Says He Did Not Slay W. O. Spencer

WRIST WATCH DEADLY CLUE

First Confession Of Three Murders Is Repudiated

NASHVILLE, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Charles Barr, Memphis "petting party" negro bandit, who shot and killed W. O. Spencer the night of May 23, 1923, and wounded his companions, Miss Laura Wheaton Johnson, of the outskirts of Memphis, was electrocuted here at 4:47 a.m. today.

The 22-year old negro died without confessing to the slaying. During his last hours his mother conversed with him and much of this time she spent with her arms thru the bars around her son, in the death house.

Religious services were held and songs and prayers indulged in prior to the execution.

Barr went to his death calmly. He complained that the straps were too tight about his body and an attendant loosened them. He said little else except to answer in the negative a direct question as to his guilt.

The first charge of 2,300 volts shot into his body was followed two minutes later by another 2,300 volts before the man was pronounced dead.

Barr was charged with the murder of Spencer in July, 1924, more than a year after the slaying of Spencer, when a wrist watch, pawned by the wife of Barr, was recovered and identified as a watch that had been taken from the arm of Miss Johnson.

He was convicted of murder in the courts at Memphis and his death sentence affirmed by the state supreme court. Habeas corpus proceedings were denied in the federal district court at Nashville and a United States supreme court dismissed the case on appeal for want of jurisdiction.

Barr is alleged to have confessed before officers in Memphis to the murder of Spencer and also to the double slaying of Duncan Waller and Mrs. Ruth McElwain Tucker, who were killed on the night of January 27, 1923, in an automobile on a Memphis suburban highway.

He later repudiated the entire confession.

The negro was granted five stays of execution during the lengthy legal procedure. Governor Austin Peay late yesterday declined to interfere further with the execution.

GRAND JURY MIGHT END WEEK'S PROBE THIS AFTERNOON

Adjournment Is Not Thought Likely At Courthouse

CIVIL DOCKET GRINDING ON

Criminal Docket To Occupy Limelight At Later Date

The Morgan County grand jury will not report until late this afternoon, according to County Solicitor T. C. Almon who is aiding that body in the investigation of cases.

Having been closeted in the room of the Commissioners Court since early Monday the Morgan county grand jury today continued its probe into cases in this county. J. I. Chrissinger, Albany man, was chosen Monday as foreman of the jury, after its organization by Judge James E. Horton.

While no official information has yet been given out, it is believed that the jury has weighed evidence in between 75 and 100 cases, hundreds of witnesses having been called to attend the examination.

It is not probable that the body will adjourn, as the last corps of witnesses were being examined this afternoon and the corridors at the courthouse did not hold the usual crowd of the week.

Meanwhile the Circuit court grinds on slowly with the civil docket, which docket is expected to string out for perhaps two more weeks unless the court pleases to switch to the criminal docket.

The civil and criminal dockets are both very heavy, owing to the summer months. As usual, the civil docket does not attract the attention of the public as does the criminal court procedure, the long probing into legal technicalities not satisfying the curiosity of the public.

John Patterson read letters from farm women who had attended the Short Course conducted at Auburn, the letters of appreciation coming from Mrs. J. J. Dinmore, Somerville and Mrs. Mary Cunningham, Falkville.

Mrs. W. B. Edmundson, one of the two ladies present, responded to a request for a talk summarizing the hope that additional legislation will provide for full length terms in rural schools. She entrusted a major portion of the responsibility with civic clubs, naming Kiwanis as a power to see that representatives to the state legislature.

ROPE is interested in Senator Borah's suggestion. If war debts are cancelled, reparations also should be cancelled. France and England would modify the suggestions, by making Germany pay the four billion dollar reparation now secured by bonds on German railroads and industries.

WITH all debts and all reparations wiped out, German industry would have an advantage over all nations. The death of the old mark wipes out Germany's internal debt automatically, as the drop in the franc has almost wiped out the French internal debt. Germany has practically no foreign debt, since

LASSITER MAKES A STRONG TALK FOR DIVERSIFICATION

Approximately Fifty Farmers Are Here In Gathering

JACKSON TELLS OF MARKETING

Many Constructive Talks Are Made By Farm Heads

"Farmers want a weekly payroll, because men want more business, everybody is agreed, it is time for action," was the striking illustration of W. C. Lassiter, editor of the Progressive Farmer, in an address Thursday evening before a gathering of farm visitors and Kiwanians. Mr. Lassiter spoke of the present day needs of farmer and business man.

Gathering at the Y. M. C. A. at seven o'clock approximately fifty farmers from Morgan, Lawrence and Limestone counties were guests of the Kiwanis club in the final meeting of the Farm Relations committee.

The meeting was opened with the singing of America. T. M. Dix offered the invocation and the assembly sat down to the service of an excellent dinner. M. R. Rankin and J. R. Daniell led the assemblage in song.

Miss Sallye Hamilton, Morgan home demonstration agent, made an interesting and inclusive report for the eleven months in which she has worked in this county, organizing various clubs among the farm women and girls. Her report was received with close attention by Kiwanians who have been responsible for the life of the department in this county.

John Patterson read letters from farm women who had attended the Short Course conducted at Auburn, the letters of appreciation coming from Mrs. J. J. Dinmore, Somerville and Mrs. Mary Cunningham, Falkville.

Mrs. W. B. Edmundson, one of the two ladies present, responded to a request for a talk summarizing the hope that additional legislation will provide for full length terms in rural schools. She entrusted a major portion of the responsibility with civic clubs, naming Kiwanis as a power to see that representatives to the state legislature.

there was no easy mark Uncle Sam to send her billions in war time.

DEBT and reparations cancellation would leave Germany and her industries free from debt, other nations loaded with foreign debts. Even Uncle Sam, who borrowed nothing from foreigners, would go on paying off twenty odd billions that he still owes on so-called Liberty Bonds. As it is, Germany after losing the war, is more prosperous than France and other nations that "won" the war.

TOURIST PARTY IN MIDST OF BATTLE

Americans Leave The City of Damascus Under Guard

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Local newspapers print dispatches from Adenau, telling of terrifying experiences of 200 American tourists in Damascus.

After visiting the ruins of Bealbek, under the protection of French armored cars, the tourists were escorted by soldiers to Damascus. During the night of August 14 Druse tribesmen cut the telegraph and electric light wires, threw the city into darkness and made a strong attack, to which the French replied with heavy gun fire.

Emerging from their hotels at daybreak, the morning of the 15th, the Americans sought the French military escort to the coast, declaring that they did not wish to risk remaining in Damascus.

Their route from the city was strewn with a hundred French and many Druse dead.

NINE CITIZENS ARE CHOSEN MAKE RACE FOR CITY'S MAYOR

Two Are Named For President Of City Council

MASS MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Political Opinions In Variance Over The Final Line-up

Nine nominations for mayor and two chosen for president of the city council constitute the action of the Thursday night mass meeting of citizens at the Albany city hall.

Spirited choosing of candidates followed soon after the organization of the gathering. G. O. Chennault having been chosen as chairman and J. L. Draper as secretary.

E. W. Strother, of Twin City Bread company, was chosen as one of the two candidates for president of the city council. T. E. Williams, employe of Morgan County National Bank, was chosen as the other nominee.

The nominations for mayor included: Charles Rountree, Dr. F. L. Carswell, Dr. J. L. Gunter, J. R. Collier, W. A. Brittain, C. D. Patterson, Dr. F. L. Chennault, B. L. Malone and J. N. Hendrix.

The nominations included the names of men well known in every circle of life in Albany.

The Thursday night meeting followed the Tuesday night gatherings in the four wards at which time nominations for aldermen were made.

Political opinions while varying on the lineup, merged on the thought that not more than three men nominated would make the race and probably only two to run off.

Nominations were spirited, each nominee being well supported by a representation of citizens.

The action at the city hall brought back thoughts of August when state and county campaigns were in full swing and commanding the attention of the public. The city today plunged into discussion of the race and the probabilities of various candidates. Interested parties were of the opinion that the race will be developed in the week before election, feeling that like the state and county battle that the people will not warm up to the voting duties prior to that time.

TODAY 12 Years Ago

From The Daily of August 20, 1914.

E. V. Thompson of Ohio, but recently of Athens, has accepted a position with J. W. Thornton.

Up until noon not a single candidate had filed his petition for municipal office with City Clerk E. W. Collier of Decatur.

United States Marshal Skeggs is in the city and probably will remain here throughout the week.

Mesdames R. G. Gortner, W. B. Smith and C. B. Elliot are the guests of Mrs. R. O. Darwin at Trinity.

Miss Jennie Perkins, of Gordon Drive west, entertained last evening at whist in honor of visiting ladies.

The next investigation to be held will be for the purpose of finding if Alabamians are Republicans or Democrats.

If there is any doubt about the season just take a look at newspapers and magazines for the number of bathing beauties, summer is certainly here.

Here is to the rumored new highway commission, may that body show Alabama some of these good roads Colonel Graves has been talking about. North Alabama will welcome the new governor on a road building mission that will not end in an investigation.

BUSINESS MAN FINDS THAT WORK MAKES THE BUSINESS.

This newspaper has been advocating a "go to work" plan for August, 1926, in order that business this August might prove its value over August 1925. Yesterday a concrete example of a pleased merchant was found.

This merchant said briefly that he had worked this August, worked hard, that his business had increased over last August to an appreciable degree.

That merchant had cause to feel proud of himself, he had developed a so-called poor month into a good month. He had taken hard work to turn the trick, but he had weathered the storm of vacation circulars and stuck to his post. He gained his goal.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION SHOULD DO SOMETHING ABOUT ECHOLS HILL.

The elections are a thing of the past, the various state agencies now may be expected to function properly, and the people of Albany and Decatur are hopeful that, with politics adjourned, some action will be forthcoming on Echols Hill.

The Echols Hill-project has been the subject of some discussion as to whether the state or the City of Albany shall be responsible for its maintenance. At last reports the state officials were said to be convinced that the state had undertaken some part, if not all, of this responsibility. Another report soon followed that the state was considering changing the route of the Bee Line highway out of the city, to avoid Echols Hill entirely.

Either repair of the present road, or the construction of the new route, should be undertaken at once. The people of Albany and Decatur deserve this consideration, the people of Morgan county deserve it and the hundreds of tourists and out-of-the-county citizens who traverse the Bee Line daily deserve it.

DECATUR COUNCIL DISCUSSES PAVING OF STREETS.

The Decatur council has discussed informally the paving of additional streets in that city. Decatur is now one of the best paved cities in the state if not in the southland and the councilmen are looking forward to further paving.

Some people will say "what for?" Others will look at the progressive side of the argument and see that the council is preparing for greater growth. Fifth avenue west, Decatur, is an example of the advantage of the paved street. That street has literally grown from a sparsely settled community street to a thickly populated prosperous district typical of the city since the completion of the thoroughfare. It is highly probable that the same will be true of other paved streets. Such an expansion can be expected in east Albany when work is finally started on the projects on Tower avenue, Jackson and Sherman streets. Paving of city streets never should be regarded as an expense, but rather as a public improvement paying immense dividends almost before the life of the surfacing is started.

ALBANY-DECATUR FAIR NEEDS SUPPORT OF PEOPLE.

Albany-Decatur is going to have a fair in September. That announcement should be sufficient to warrant attention from local people, citizens should begin to plan at once to make these cities the mecca for hundreds and thousands of people from North Alabama agricultural areas.

Albany-Decatur once had an industrial exposition that according to the thoughts of men did more harm than good. The Albany-Decatur fair while an entirely different sort of exposition can do harm unless the citizens back it with every ounce of energy. Contained in that energy should be measured congenial hospitality, good natured talk, progressive steps, good will toward the visitor. In such case the fair can be the means of a goodly increase in farm patronage. Without the support of citizens it is highly probable that loss will be felt.

The Daily pledges its efforts to the fair, hoping that its publicity will bring thousands of people here, hoping that its publicity will be backed by a genuine source of amusement and wholesome pleasure to be found at the fair grounds. Plans are being made daily looking toward the making of the fair an excellent success and from all indications the September days should prove highly profitable to the entire section.

FARMERS ARE GUESTS OF THE KIWANIS CLUB.

Albany-Decatur was particularly fortunate Thursday night in having a goodly representation of Morgan and Limestone farmers. The planters came here as the evening guests of the Kiwanis club, attending the concluding session of the farm relations committee.

Farmers of Limestone and Morgan counties are rapidly becoming acquainted with Albany-Decatur and what there is to be offered here. This fact is established through the efforts of the farm relations committee and through the circulation of this newspaper, both agencies doing every bit of work possible to bring the farmer and the townsman in close touch, making the problems of the one the problems of the other.

The day will come when every day in Albany-Decatur is farm day, when the agricultural interests of the north Alabama section will come to Albany-Decatur for their needs. Conditions in roadways will have to change greatly, curb market will have to be established, other things will be taken into consideration, but the day is drawing nearer. Albany-Decatur needs the farmer worse than the farmer needs Albany-Decatur. Encourage his visits and his business.

RAINFALL IS SUBJECT FOR GRUMBLING AND DISCUSSION.

Albany-Decatur and Morgan county has suffered much rainfall in the past two weeks, farmers have been hindered in their work, summer dresses have been spoiled, straw hats have become spotted somewhat sooner than anticipated and ready for the discard and with all the rainfall this section has not received more than a share. The weather records compiled by Mrs. A. H. Irons, government observer, go to show that Albany-Decatur has not had even an inch of rainfall at one time, through the whole of last week the rainfall reached 94 one hundredths of an inch.

Down at Miami, Florida, night before last 8.6 inches of rain fell. In a night in 1919 over 11 inches of rain fell in that Florida city. There isn't much to feel bad about after all, is there?

Mother Nature will come to the rescue of the farmers in this section and a great cotton crop will again be produced. Summer dresses are already prepared for the discard with the advent of fall and as for the straw hat, why its been out of style for the past two weeks. No use to discuss the weather condition when August business this year should warrant attention from local people, citizens should be made to outstrip last August.

OBSERVE SPEEDING LAWS. RAISE SPEED LIMIT.

Both Albany and Decatur are well fortified for the time being with adequate traffic laws so far as automobiles entering arterial highways are concerned. Moves by the city councils of both cities have been received with gratification by the people who realize that a long felt necessity has been filled. The public will observe these laws for more reasons than one. First: The public is not a law-breaker. Then, the public understands that the law has been enacted for the benefit of the public, allowing drivers to follow directions rather than guessing at what the other driver is going to do. Likewise, the public will understand that such law will go far toward clearing in case of an accident, provided the other person or driver has violated the traffic regulation. It is beneficial.

Yet, there has been no law provided against the stopping in the middle of the street, cars may halt at anytime regardless of the strain on other brakes. The driver may enjoy a conversation unless an officer comes upon the scene and demands the car to move on.

Neither is the speed limit high enough. The Daily realizes the need for curbing speeders, but this newspaper does not believe that Albany and Decatur have a worse class of drivers than are to be found in the cities where cars are allowed to speed between traffic signals. This thing of halting at a "Stop" signal and then plugging along at a gait of 10 to 15 miles an hour is monotony typical of the small town.

Albany-Decatur will be better served if people are allowed to go on their business missions in a hurry when they are not in school zones.

PECULIAR SITUATION IN POLITICAL CIRCLES.

Alabama probably will not face a more peculiar lineup in the days to come in political realms than the state is now facing. Statements are denied by parties who have been quoted in newspapers, newspapers do not usually quote unless they have been given that right, Democrats declare they will vote Republican tickets, Republicans plan to carry their campaign over the state in an effort to defeat Hugo Black and Bibb Graves. Such a situation cannot be readily recognized as a good or an evil for the state of Alabama.

Pretty soon unless some of the turmoil is moved and the public eye is allowed to see through the haze some person will be able to make a great deal of money in writing a "Who's Who in Alabama." It is indeed a ticklish situation, one that Alabama must face squarely if Republicans plan to carry their fight to the people. The majority of Democrats will stand by age old political guns and declare that to vote Republican will characterize "political suicide," other Democrats will refuse to go to the polls, not desiring to vote against men of the Ramsay and Smith caliber.

Here is a situation that will require thorough study on the part of state political leaders for unless the cards are played correctly by the Democratic party there is a bare possibility that Alabama will stray from the Democratic ranks, as Tennessee has done in the past. It is a situation that is going to demand strength on the part of the Democratic party, without unanimity the party will smash.

reparations be cancelled, except the German reparation bill. It is suggested not too honestly, that Uncle Sam might get the German payment of four billions in full for his claims, if, as, and when paid. If that arrangement were made, Germany would find a reason for not paying. She is paying now because she is disarmed, and has the French army, and French flying machines next door. Uncle Sam, 3,000 miles away would not worry her. Every one knows that this country would not go to war to collect a debt.

AND, if Uncle Sam did go to war against Germany, which is inconceivable, it would delight the sense of humor to see how our dear brothers in arms of 1917 would all side with Germany. How surprised the great and good Woodrow Wilson would be, if he could come back and find all of the war's hatreds replaced by one universal and enthusiastic hatred of the United States. He little expected that, when the king met him at the railroad station, and took him to sleep in Buckingham Palace, or when Italian enthusiasts put his portrait on the wall, next to Garibaldi's.

ON SUNDAY, 60,000 visiting the sesquicentennial exposition in Philadelphia, studied exhibits from many states and foreign countries, latest machinery, new inventions, devices to increase happiness and diminish misery among human beings.

AND many sincere men and women, believe that the 60,000 ought to go to hell, or close to it, for "violating the Sabbath." What do they think happens in heaven on Sunday? Are the harps silenced, the strange and interesting beasts, described in revelation, caged up for the day, the dignified and industrious elders ordered to stop their bowing down, until Monday morning.

How can a Christian, Mohammedan, Shintoist, or Buddhist, spend Sunday better than studying a combination of man's works and creator's beneficence?

BIG CITIES, struggling with suburban traffic problems, neglect one possibility that interests the very able, President Smith of the New York Central railroad. The plan was to erect viaducts above railroad tracks, running through thickly populated suburbs. New York suggests that omnibus lines carry suburbanites to the water front, load them on fast boats, that would transfer them to other omnibuses. A thousand times better, simpler, quicker, would be a viaduct over railroads reaching populous urban districts. They disagree with each other violently on questions of religion, and are too busy hating each other to combine against Britain.

THE ONLY interesting fact is that of 4,600 representative men and women, only 1,904 thought it worth while to vote. Representative men and women can get what they want to drink, and are supposedly, intelligent enough to avoid bootleg poison. Prohibition has not changed their lives to any great extent. It has changed the lives and habits of millions that were not consulted, when prohibition was made law, and what are not included in a list of "representative men and women."

ALLEGED 'SHINERS' GUARD 'NAPPING'

Several Arrested By Raiding Party Near Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Battles have been won in the past because of slumbering sentries and Thursday afternoon three county officers registered a victory over alleged moonshiners in the Glover's Bend area, all because their alleged "watcher" had fallen asleep on the job.

This was revealed today following the arrest of Henry Thompson, Bob Odum, Herman McKinney and Hugh McKinney, all of Buck Short Ridge, on a charge of distilling.

Hugh McKinney, the alleged napping guard, was arrested by officers at a point near the still. Deputies Adams, Dobbs and Cole were said to have surprised him, removed his shotgun and handcuffed his wrist about a tree before proceeding on the raid.

McKinney Friday denied that he had been caught napping, or that he had any connection with the alleged distillers. He declared, on the contrary, that he was walking through the woods on a hunting trip and that the officers accused him of being an outpost for the trio.

"Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredyth, starring John Barrymore.
Is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Don Juan's disillusioned father warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you; take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Juan the greatest lover of all time. But his cynicism is suddenly checked by the disarming innocence of a Madonna-like Adriana Varanese. Loving her madly, he vows to lead a clean life. The affair is dangerous because in famous Lucretia Borgia loves Juan, while Donati, her kinsman, covets Adriana. The Borgias institute a reign of terror in Rome against the lovers—and capture Adriana and her father, Duke Varanese.

Donati was not smiling. He was looking at Adriana, and just coarsened his face, making him even more repulsive than he was ordinarily. From time to time he licked his thick lips with his tongue, and his hands clenched and unclenched restlessly, as if they itched to touch her delicate body.

Adriana shuddered as his glance crept over her like some slimy, unclean thing. She clung to her father, cold with fear. The torches borne by some of the Borgia retainers threw an ominous red glare over the armed men, and flickered over the stone walls of the Varanese palace. On either side of the steps great steel rings had been let into the stones, one hanging from the mouth of each of the two huge dragons wrought of metal that were fastened to the stonework.

"I had sooner kill the girl with my own hand," he told Cesare indignantly.

their horses tethered to these rings, and torches were thrust into the dragons' heads, to light the guests' arrival. Tonight purposely no torches had been so placed, and one of the Borgia henchmen, tiring of the weight of his torch, thrust it through the dragon's head nearest him.

To Varanese that act was symbolic. It was as if the Borgias had already taken over his palace and added his fortune to their own. Would they take also the lovely, slender girl who clung to him in terror? What would be her fate? He knew that he himself was facing certain death. Cesare Borgia was a relentless enemy, and there were many old scores between them that would now be settled. For himself Varanese did not greatly mind dying. Life had not been kind to him. It had given him the treasures of the world, but it had taken his young wife from him when Adriana was born. And since then the girl's happiness had been the only thing that mattered to him.

The thought of leaving her alone in the hands of the Borgias was intolerable. Yet only a miracle could save him from death, and her from a far worse fate.

Yet he faced Cesare Borgia proudly. No fate, however bitter, could make him flinch before this complacent, sneering enemy. Cesare came slowly forward, Donati at his elbow, his eyes still on Adriana. He liked her fear of him; forcing her to accede to his wishes would be pleasant indeed.

Cesare spoke curiously, his words cutting the air like sharp, small knives.

"You are under arrest," he said to Varanese. "And as a friend of the Orsini, you already know your fate."

Adriana cried out in terror; her father, his eyes still looking straight into Cesare's, patted her reassuringly on the shoulder.

Cesare made as if to turn away, then, turning back, looked at the girl thoughtfully, then cast a side-long glance at Donati, as if a new idea had just then come into his mind.

"There is this chance of a pardon for you," he said slowly. "My kinsman, the Count Donati, desires your daughter in marriage. Give her to him and become our loyal follower."

"No—no!" cried Adriana, sick with horror at the mere thought of such a thing.

Her father went white to the lips.

Cesare's eyes narrowed, and for a moment his sneering smile was lost as his face tightened and grew grim. Then he smiled again, and at sight of a little serving maid who cowered behind Adriana crossed herself and muttered a prayer. For Cesare Borgia's smile boded evil for those who called it forth.

Donati's hand flew to the hilt of his sword. Cesare turned to his soldiers and gave an order curtly, an order that was hardly needed, so plain was it that the Borgia retainers had expected it all along. They leaped forward, the red torchlight playing over the metal of their accoutrements with a sinister glare. They seized the Duke, though Adriana clung to him, crying out wildly in protest. Roughly they shoved her aside and dragged Varanese down into the courtyard.

Suddenly realizing what this meant, she ran after him, crying "I will follow!" She was frantic with fear for him; in that moment no sacrifice that could be paid with her own body meant anything to her, if it could buy his safety.

She sped to his side and threw her arms about his neck. Cesare watched her, smiling. Donati watched also, complacently. For a moment he had feared that the girl would escape him, although Cesare had promised him that he should have her, as soon as the Legislature take steps to provide funds for such purpose. The speaker pleaded that a chance be given farm children in educational advantages.

Miss James, Somerville woman, expressed her pleasure at being present and spoke of the splendid efforts of the Kiwanis club in helping farm work.

Jackson Speaks
Dr. M. F. Jackson, of the T. C. I. Extension Service, Birmingham, reviewed the activities of his company in the buying and marketing of Alabama products. He told of the efforts of his company to obtain Alabama products and the chance offered the farmer by the cooperative marketing and federation bureaus.

Dr. Jackson urged that farmers of this county get in touch with the county farm agent who in turn will communicate with the T. C. I. company, that firm either handling the product direct, or trying to provide a market elsewhere.

Others Called Upon
C. J. Randolph expressed his appreciation at the efforts of the county farm and home demonstration agents for aid in the recent Underprivileged Child's Clinic. Mr. Randolph stated that 97 sets of tonsils were removed from indigent and five major operations were performed during the clinic.

James J. Gurley, Somerville of the board of revenue, told of his pleasure at being present.

John T. Kyle, Hartselle, member of the board of education, saw bright prospects for educational facilities in this county.

Prof. H. T. Lile, Trinity, took occasion to review history of the educational situation in this county, declaring that in 1896 when he was county superintendent of education that $14,000 was provided for expenses in county schools. He declared that in 1922-23 that $140,000 was provided in this county for teachers and that in 1925-26, $120,000 was spent for the same purpose. He believed that education is the basis for wealth and gave comparative figures upon states well along in educational training, showing the value of brains over the value of natural resource.

Fred S. Hunt, chairman of the farm relations committee was introduced.

M. R. Rankin and J. R. Daniell led a brief period of song.

Lassiter Appeals
W. C. Lassiter paid a tribute to civic clubs in opening his address upon the "Pay Roll."

"There are 4,200 small factories in Morgan county," said the speaker, each producing a pay roll. The bringing in of industry to consume the product of these 4,200 factories is important of course, but it is more important that these industries already here are developed, that pay rolls come more frequent than once a year." Mr. Lassiter was speaking of the need for farm development.

"The yearly pay day is not good for business, nor is it good for the farmer." Thus did the speaker explain the advantage of diversified farming in bringing a distributed pay day over the 52 weeks of the year.

The speaker stressed the importance of crop diversification, the raising of stock and poultry, the shipments in methods of cooperative marketing and appealed for close communication between the business man and the farmer. "It is time for action," the speaker declared in conclusion, "it is time we stop talking, and like the T. C. I. get into action in selling Alabama products to ourselves and to the world."

MAN WITH 34 TRADES
FINDS NO MONOTONY

KINGSTON, N. C.—There is one person in the world who needn't stick to one task until it becomes monotonous. He is C. R. Churchill.

Churchill claims to have 34 trades and professions. He is at present painting scenery. A few weeks ago he was an actor. Next month may find him doing something else.

He has been pretty much over the world, he says, and has picked up his trades here and there and from time to time.

"My hobby is being as perfect as possible in everything I undertake," he said.

Crook, department France convention officer for Alabama. The announcement, it was said, came in response to many rumors that recent developments might cause the legion to abandon the meeting in Paris.

Madison And Homelings Deadlock In 10 Frames; Darkness Sweeps Verdict

Some sage once sang a song about Casey, folks grew tired of hearing about that Casey, so let's talk about our Casey now.

With nine and a half frames rolled by and darkness about to gather a verdict while Albany-Decatur and Madison argued a 7-7 deadlock, a diminutive figure with a great shock of hair and a tremendous eye shade closed his even- ing of toil with as clean a bit of hurling as has been seen here in many an afternoon.

The heavy end of the batting order was up, Stewart, the visiting flinger who had already learned the dangers of that end of the batting order, hauled his belt in another notch, raised his eye shade a trifle and said "So's your Aunt Emma."

Gen Burleson was the first to gaze intently at that forest of hair on the hillock. Gen whaled the atmosphere. John Burleson next up plied the hurler for four balls and ambled to first. Raymond Pepper who had been hitless through the afternoon, but who came home with an enviable record as a hitter of renown, strode to the pan. Pepper waltzed through three swings gracefully and walked toward the dark bulk of the crowd lining the first base line. Then the latter day Casey faced Stewart, Dutch Mitwede, who had been parking the agitator all afternoon, already having accumulated a pair of sizzling trippies as a duo of doubles, walked serenely to the platter, with a confidence that would have shaken Gibraltar. Dutch couldn't get his eye on the agitator in the fast gathering gloom and after three healthy swings Madison and Albany-Decatur split the gate receipts 50-50.

The game was one of the neatest battles seen here in many moons. A goodly crowd cluttered the stands and at times the cheering drowned away the summer thundering.

Lowery started the game for the locals, but was pretty wild, walking four men in the first frame. He would have gotten away with a clean slate in that frame but for an untimely boot by Moore at second which allowed a pair of visiting shoes to be planted on the plate. Madison added another pair in the third when Goofy tripled to deep center just behind a single. Lowery gave way to McAllister, a left-handed flinger who knew his business.

Albany-Decatur scored one and then a pair, behind the hectic clouting of Dutch Mitwede who seemed to have Gentry's number, Madison's initial hill choice. With the score at 4-3, Madison got busy again in the fifth when McAllister became suddenly wild. A pair of bad chunks and a safe blow accounted for three Madison tallies. Albany-Decatur picked up another pair in their half of the fifth to make the score 7-5.

In the seventh and eighth Mitwede and John Burleson helped the locals to a run in each frame to knot the count.

It stayed knotted the rest of the afternoon.

McAllister and Stewart made it a regular hurlers duel in the tenth when the local hurler retired a pair by strikeout and the story of the diminutive Stewart has already been told.

The locals pulled a pair of timely double plays for the afternoon one in the first when it was needed. Lowery to McAnn to J. Burleson. Mitwede-Pepper and J. Burleson contributed the other two time killing.

The fielding scintillant of the afternoon went to Fields playing in right when he handled McAllister's drive with the gloved hand to prevent local counting.

Gen Burleson contributed some excellent base running, making a delayed steal after he had been caught napping at first and then stealing second when Madison lads were looting about the field. He took both sacks standing up.

Madison dashed cold water on a ninth inning rally of the locals when Gen Burleson was thrown out at the plate.

The lineup follows:
Madison: Gentry ss; Adcock, lf; Bowers, 2b; Goofy, 1b; Harbin, cf; Fields, rf; Abernathy, c; Payne, 3b; M. Gentry, p; Stewart, 3b-p.

Albany-Decatur: G. Burleson, cf; J. Burleson, 1b; Pepper, lf-2b; Mitwede, 2b; Overton, ss; Moore, 2b-lf; Cobb, lf; Hill, rf; McAnn, c; Lowery, p; McAllister, p.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

Madison . . . 202 030 000 0-7 8 4

A-D . . . 001 220 110 0-7 11 2

Umpires: Sorber, Dagg.

Summary: Two base hits: Mitwede 2, J. Burleson, Overton; three base hits Mitwede 2, Goofy; stolen bases: G. Burleson 2; hits off Lowery 3 in 2 innings. McAllister 5 in 8 innings. Off Gentry 10 in 8 and one third innings. Stewart 1 in 1 3-4 innings.
